Higher Meralco rates approved

But ERC orders firm to refund customers P3.9B

By Abigail L. Ho

A MERALCO spokesman expects electric meters of low-income households along Agham Road in Quezon City

APR 2008

CUSTOMERS OF MAMLA ELECTRIC Co. will see their monthly bills rise by an average of 14 centavos per kilowatt-hour (KWH), following the approval of the Energy Regulatory Commission (ERC) of new distribution, supply and marketing charges for the power shortfalls.

Meralco customers, however, will not feel the full impact of the rate increase as the ERC also bowed an order directing the distribution utility to refund P3.9 billion in overcharges.

Because the various customer classes pay different rates, the refund does not mean that it will offset the additional charges.

"If we are to be true to our mandate of promoting the customer's long-term interest, we have to make sure that really very difficult decisions have been made so that the customers enjoy the electric service that they deserve and pay for," ERC Chair

GMA backs P1-M deposit insurance

By TJ Bugarin

PRESIDENT MACARAPAGAL-Arroyo is supporting a proposal to increase the deposit insurance coverage to P1 million to shield depositors from possible bank failures arising from the global financial turmoil.

While the country's financial system is stable, the President feels that this is "a proportionate response" to the global financial uncertainties, Executive Secretary Eduardo Ermita said yesterday.

Gov'ts take more bold moves to ease crisis

LONDON—GOVERNMENTS across the globe stepped up efforts to keep credit flowing and ward off a financial meltdown, lifting hopes in major stock markets that the worst of the global crisis may be over.

In the United States, Federal Reserve Chair Ben Bernanke on Monday pushed for more government spending as a follow-up measure to boost the world's biggest economy out of the doldrums. Without the fresh dose of economic stimulus like pouring more money in American's pockets, the US central bank chief warned the slump could drag on.

In Greece, Spanish authorities in various corners of the growing number of banks and financial institutions in the United States and Europe have collapsed because of their huge exposures to subprime mortgages. Some banks, considered too big to fail, have been rescued by their respective governments.

In sales and product jittery depositors and credit levels rose, several European and Asian countries have increased their deposit insurance coverage. (See list on Page A21.)

INTO THE EYE OF THE STORM Former PNP comptroller Eliseo de la Paz arrives in Manila on Tuesday and later faces media to answer questions on why he had P10,000 euros in Moscow.

De la Paz says sorry for fiasco in Moscow

By Terra Quinsanda

FOUR HOURS AFTER RETURNING from Russia, where he had been found carrying cash in excess of the legal limit and barred from taking a flight home, former Philippine National Police comptroller Eliseo de la Paz faced the media but left the big questions unanswered.

And it was made clear for the first time that the P6.9-million cash advance De la Paz carried to Russia as disbursing officer of a police delegation that attended the 77th Interpol General Assembly was on top of the P2.3-million travel allowance that the PNP had declared, and that its oversight body the National Police Commission (NAPCOM) had approved.

Napcom had not yet sanctioned why the P6.9 million was not declared.

In a 15-minute press conference yesterday afternoon at an Edeco restaurant, De la Paz said the P6.9 million had come from PNP coffers.

He also said he had saved "frankly and honestly" in the PNP.

"As police comptroller and special disbursing officer of the top-level Philippine delegation... I took out from my P50-million cash advance (sanctioned) the amount of P6.9 million, which I converted

Filipino in Hanoi: A people uncowed by US bombs

THE AUTHOR Amanda Quinsanda, stands beside a bomb crater during visit to three North Vietnam in 1967.

(Editor's Note: Quinsanda columnist Amanda Quinsanda's dispatch, published last week as a foreign correspondent from the headlines of the four volumes of her reminiscences, "My Asia in Upheaval: A Memoir of From Line Reporting." In this string of essays from the chapters on North Vietnam, the details come from a country under intense US bombardment in 1967. ONE AFTERNOON, WHILE strolling down the street around Hanoi's beautiful Lake of the Redwood Forest (Baik Lake during the French colonial period), I considered the city center. I was caught in a tight spot. I observed how the people reacted to the risks. I thought they were a little too cautious and self-confident. People showed the streets calmly—no panic at all. They merely sat on the edge of the Isolation looking downcast, as though waiting for the bombs to fall before they jumped in. Aisles usually lasted 15 to 20 minutes, and after the all-clear siren had sounded, people responded in the streets just as calmly as they had disappeared.

In my hotel, pretty Vietnamese reception clerks, barmaids, and waitresses turned former militia fighters at the sound of the alarm. They returned their aprons, posted

Senate set to subpoena Jocjoc anew

Palace says it will not block probes when Bolante comes home

By Elmer Papa, Michael Lim-Glas and TJ Borgeles

WITH THE NEWS THAT FORMER AGRICULTURE Undersecretary Jocelyn "Jocjoc" Bolante could be deported to Manila at anytime, the Senate is preparing to subpoena him to a new public inquiry into the alleged P725-million fertilizer fund scam.

Sen. Alan Peter Geronimo, chair of the Senate blue ribbon committee, said he would issue another subpoena for Bolante in late June as a question in the validity of the one it issued three years ago.

Geronimo said his committee would initiate a public hearing as soon as Bolante arrives in Manila to explore his reported 40 reasons of the fertilizer fund to political allies and supporters of President Manzano. Managed Agra says Bolante is already in the US.

In Manila, from Secretary Jesse Duterte said the Palace would not interfere in attempts to stop the Undersecretary from the Senate from probing Bolante's role in the fertilizer scam.

"The Palace will not put a hand [down] to stop any of them. Let all of these investigations proceed as they should," Duterte told reporters in a briefing.

Duterte denied allegations that Whitehouse was planning to shield Bolante from any criminal and political probes.

Too suspicious

"You're too suspicious of a government cover-up," he told reporters. "The government is there to provide all the necessary assistance to the investigation process."

But Duterte considered it odd why investigating agencies had not yet filed a case against Bolante.

"What if they have any other witnesses that they can prove the witness said?"

University of the Philippines law professor Henry Reyes, who filed an amicus brief opposing Bolante's return, told said Bolante would be deported "anytime."

Bolante, who fled to the US in 2006 to escape the fertilizer inquiry, is currently being held at the Ecuadorian Embassy in Manila. He is in the Philippines awaiting the outcome of his last appeal to stop his deportation.

The US Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals in August denied Bolante's petition for asylum and ruled that there was no reason to delay his deportation. The court said Bolante failed to prove he was being persecuted in the Philippines. His risk had been overstated.

He is the database

Sen. Manuel Torres has written US Ambassador Chris K. Ramsey to request that Bolante be deported straight to Manila, and not to his point of origin, which was Hong Kong, during the US court delay for asylum proceedings.

Geronimo said Bolante "has been tagged as the man behind the whole scam. He knows how it was done, who involved, and where it was with him or someone higher. Who advised him? Who was a company he's the database."

"Will he cooperate or not is another matter considering that he was in the US for years. Even his return is not voluntary," said Geronimo.

The Office of the Ombudsman had also said it was going to file graft charges against Bolante but it was located yesterday that there had been no new developments in that regard.

No need to wait

Special Prosecutor Danilo Villagracia in a phone interview with this Inquirer, said he had yet to receive the case in the criminal against Bolante from the Ombudsman.

Villagracia said the Ombudsman would file a case even before Bolante returned. "There is no need to wait the time to come home. If there is strong evidence against him, we can proceed with the filing of the case," said Villagracia.

Assure good faith

When asked why it was taking so long for the Office of the Ombudsman to file a case against Bolante, Villagracia said "I don't know."

"They [the Office of the Ombudsman] have absolute control. So I cannot speculate, but let's assume there is good faith on their part," said Villagracia.

He also said that if he were to "reinvestigate" Bolante's case, he would have had the information in the Ombudsman's custody.

"If we wait for him to come home before filing a case, it could take a year for the case to run," he said, adding that Bolante could ask for a preliminary investigation. "If Bolante had been filed in the Ombudsman, there would be a case," he said. "It is up to the Ombudsman if a preliminary investigation is needed. It will either take 30 days or 60 days, or some cases 90 days."

Not sitting on case

The Inquirer tried to get a comment from Ombudsman Mercedes Gutierrez but was informed she was in a meeting.

In September, Gutierrez told Inquirer reporters that Bolante should come home and face the allegations against him. Gutierrez also denied the criticism for his office was sitting on Bolante's case, saying his office was probing the case and that his investigators were looking into the matter.

He said the would not be sitting on the case against Bolante, who is said to be close to the President's household, Jose Miguel Arroyo, if there was any evidence.

AFTER 134 lbs.

Just a few months ago, actress and TV host Bernadette Allen was just another face in the crowd. When she gained weight from pregnancy, people barely recognized her. But after just 2 months in Marla France, Bernadette has surprised everyone — quickly losing 35 lbs. [and still going], and wearing stouter skirts and sleeveless tops again after 3 years! “I can fit into my old clothes” she says proudly. “Most importantly, I’m happier, more confident, energetic and every! Every morning, I look forward to choosing what to wear. I’m back to my old self!”

Watch out, she's not through yet! Witness Bernadette's figure transformation from slimmer to sinner as she continues with her Marie France program. No, no, can lose weight the safe, effective and easy way like her! Call us for a FREE consultation and you'll be making friends here in no time!

IN THE OCT. 10 ISSUE, a front-page story—"50-year coach with 100,000 hours flying" —mistakenly reported the name of the author of the story as "John De la Cruz." He is an ex-comptroller of the Philippine National Bank, not a former national congressman.
IN THE SAME ISSUE, a photo-caption on Page A13 mentioned the date when the Christmas Mass was held (11 p.m. on Dec. 10, 2007), not Dec. 10, 2007.

ALFREDO S. EMBAGLIA, the man UN's Emergency Relief Coordinator, died in the Raso Pedon, Laguna House Saturday. He was 67.

After heading the Anthropology Division of the National Museum, Gringolles retired as its deputy director in 2005.

In the course of a generation of field anthropology, Frangoulis discovered cultural artifacts now regarded as lost, made of the Filippine ginseng. He joined the National Museum after obtaining a master's degree in anthropology from the University of Chicago in 1959 under the Fulbright program.

Among Fiveglina's most important finds were the earliest primary burial sites in the country—5,300 years old at Dzyng Cave, Polavon, and the Lagun Copper Sites—the earliest known large documents in the country.

From last week's column on, Batang Island, he uncovered two pieces of the only existing prehistoric cloth in the Philippines, now declared National Cultural Treasure.

Explain foreclosures, gov't agency told

By Judy Quins and
Allen Hsu
Inquirer Mindanao

DNAO CITY—THE individuals who give the province's National Home Mortgage Finance Corp. (NHMFC) 15 days to explain why it foreclosed on a number of income and socialized housing borrowers and could demand more money and could demand the Bank of the Philippine Islands (BPI) to pay the NHMFC, a private corporation.

Quins, president of the Philippine Association of Banks, said the NHMFC foreclosed on 2,800 houses in this city alone and transferred ownership to the BPI, a subsidiary of Deutsche Bank. But Deutsche Bank is not a nationalized bank, Quins said.

He did not say when the foreclosures started. "I look up the ratings for the city's home ownership, this is a nationwide problem," Quins said.

Last alternative

Lawyer: From Quins of the NHMFC's legal department said the bank agency foreclosed on "thousands" of properties nationwide because they were considered "highly delinquent."

"Foreclosing properties is our last alternative. The rules are nationalized (foreclosure) but we also need to take the necessary steps to protect the agency," Quins said.

He said the NHMFC had given homeowners a chance to pay their mortgage but they failed to do so. He said the NHMFC had given homeowners a chance to pay their mortgage but they failed to do so.

Quins said that before foreclosing on any property, they would demand to pay the mortgage. "But some homeowners abandon their property before the court forecloses," he said.

Quins said the NHMFC owned 41 percent of BPI, while BPI owned 51 percent of NHMFC.

Higher rates: While income and socialized housing borrowers did not pay their mortgages, the NHMFC charged 16 percent interest.

He also said the NHMFC did not offer any assistance in dealing with the NHMFC. They said they would have to pay higher interest rates.

The NHMFC only charges 5 percent interest while the BPI charges 16 percent interest.

Rolito Go seeking pardon, parole official confirms

By Dena Z. Paez-Bugay

MURDER CONVICT ROLITO GO HAS APPLIED more than once for the maximum clemency, according to a member of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

Ismael Hernandez, administrator of the Parole and Probation Administration, said Go's application had come up before during Board deliberations.

"Rolito Go, despite applying (for clemency), he's still with the Board (Parole and Probation)," said Hernandez, at a press conference called yesterday by the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines Episcopal Commission on Prison/Prisoners' Care.

But he said he did not know the status of Go's application at present.

"From (Go), but recently I can't recall the status of the application," he said.

The possible grant of freedom to Go came up after another high-profile murder convict, Claudio Tiberio Jr., was wrongly granted maximum clemency by President Macapagal-Arroyo.

Tiberio had killed two people, while Go shot to death a college student over a traffic altercation.

Tiberio served 14 years of a life sentence while Go has done less than that.

He also escaped from jail and hid for three years before being recaptured, which has made him ineligible for a pardon.

Yesterday, inmates of the New Bilibid Prison in Marikina City were treated by the Public Attorney's Office to a day of free legal consultations and medical, dental and optical treatments.

Tiberio's release had caused controversy because it highlighted the difference in the treatment accorded rich and influential prisoners like the sons of the late slain president of the Supreme Court and his.

Hernandez said he did not want to discuss Tiberio's pardon because a petition had been filed in the Supreme Court seeking to annul more the presidential pardon.

But he said Tiberio was "qualified for executive clemency" since he had complied with the requirements, including serving more than 20 years in prison, covering his great conduct time allowance.

In response to a question, Hernandez said Tiberio could go forward if he chose to.

"In general, yes, in fact we allow our justice system to be more open, especially the convicted must stand because it is for the good of the client, for the good of society," he said.

He said Tiberio's case should not have been "sensationalized" since it was within his rights to apply for a pardon.

MILF rebs release abducted MSU professor

CEBU CITY—SUSPECTED Moro Islamic Education Front (MIEF) rebels under strict police supervision released an abducted Mindanao State University (MSU) official this afternoon, the police said yesterday.

Chief Supt. Dennis Abad, police director for the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (ARMM), said the inquiry by rebels that Haplosin City, Mind. budget office, was released by his captives in Marawi City May or through talks around 1 p.m.

He said no ransom was paid and Haplosin was found at Marawi City, Marawi, in Marawi, Lanao del Sur (not Lanao del Norte as he said earlier).

"The kidnappers were generous. He (MIEF) was turned over to his family and to MSU officials right after he was freed," Abad said.

Abad, 54, was driving home with his wife in Iligan City from the ARMM complex to Marawi City when armed men forced him down in Barangay Baling in Marawi on Oct. 16.

As this developed, Senior Supt. Gaudin Baray, spokesperson of the ARMM police, said dozens of illegal detainees were already freed against suspect Haplosin, former of Iligan City and Marawi, being and later before, who were arrested in connection with MIEF abduction.

It was the three suspects who implicated Abad in the kidnapping.

But Abad, MILF and military officers charged, had denied Abad's involvement in the kidnapping.

Abad said the police should dig deeper because many groups are connected to the MILF and responsible for various cases of abduction in the Lanao province.

Asked to comment on the confession of the suspects, Abad said more criminals in Lanao must be prosecuted with the MILF for various reasons.

"They wanted to prove that they are powerful and respected," he said.

Police operations were ongoing for the suspects, who are believed to be MILF rebels. The MILF leadership has denied they were behind the abduction.

The MILF has been locked in intense gun battles with troops in Marawi since August, after the Supreme Court declared a deal with government that would have given them control of a Muslim autonomous region.

Two aid workers are still in the hands of kidnappers, however.

There has been no word yet on the fate of the still workmen, though the military sector said a rescue operation was being considered.

Kidnapping in Mindanao was believed to persist by guerrillas with links to the al Qaeda terrorist network. (Philippine Daily Inquirer Mindanao and AFP)

A look inside Pangasinan capitol

By Gabriel Cordones
Lingayen, Pangasinan

HERE'S A NEW TOUCH OF ELEGANCE inside the Pangasinan provincial Capitol. The new look inside of the sprawling neo-classical structure is now a glowing display of both classical and modern art and beauty.

Thanks to the craftsmanship of two young designers who entered what was known as the 2007-2008 design contest, the old building has been transformed into a modern masterpiece.

"This was both a renovation and renovation work," says 2007-2008 design finalist, "The old building was not a masterpiece but the officers based on what the government decided."

It took Siling and his colleagues, himself, almost a year to complete the work. During its inauguration in July, provincial government employees and guests were amazed at the spacious and bright capital lobby. A large wooden provincial seal had become the lobby's centerpiece.

"Initially, I left it to go and design it work in the building," said Siling, who is now a provincial government employee and guest was amazed at the spacious and bright capital lobby. A large wooden provincial seal had become the lobby's centerpiece.

Ousted Thai premier gets 2-year jail for corruption

BANGKOK—THAILAND'S SUPREME COURT found ousted Premier Thaksin Shinawatra guilty of conflict of interest on Tuesday in connection with a land deal for his wife and sentenced him in absentia to two years in prison.

Thaksin was, however, cleared of more serious charges of abusing his powers to obtain the nation's land.

"Thaksin had violated the article of the constitution on conflict of interest, as he was then prime minister and head of government who was supposed to work for the benefit of the public," a judge said, reading the verdict.

"It is sentenced to two-year jail."

Thaksin's wife Preechaya was cleared of all charges, and the court said they would see either the land or money connected to the 2003 deal.

Neither of the pair were in court to hear the verdict, leaving their Thailand law firm in Bangkok claiming they would not get a fair trial on the graft charges mounting against them.

Thaksin, a television tycoon who became the first Thai prime minister to complete his five-year term and be re-elected, was ousted in a military coup in September 2006.

The judge claimed there was no conflict of interest and abuse of power under his rule and set up a corporate investigation unit, which has started the charges up against Thaksin and his family.

The landmark ruling made Thaksin the first politician to be convicted of corruption in Thailand while prime minister but it is not expected to provide closure to the country's deepening political crisis, which revolves around him. AP

Death by firing squad

JAKARTA—A TOP INDOONESIAN court handed a death by firing squad to three members of the Indonesian parliament for corruption on Tuesday for their conviction.

The Constitutional Court dismissed their appeals to be imprisoned instead, which they claim is more in line with Islamic law and their defense lawyers argued it was cruel than being shot to death.

"There is no method of execution without pain," said presiding Judge Muhammad Mahfud, sentencing the defendants.

The defendants' suffering has helped intensify the debate on capital punishment under Indonesian law and "cannot be compared to executing the convict," the court judge-panel concluded.

The October 2002 trial night-club bombings killed 202 people, 96 of them American tourists.

Corruption Attorney Mahfud, Ali Gubani and Imam Samudra have exhausted all appeals and are expected to be executed this year. They have shown no remorse and have said their deaths would be avenged. AP

WORLD BRIEFS

Host wanted

BEIJING—Chinese Tuesday proposed a two-day summit in Beijing between the two sides of the Korean Peninsula. The proposal was made by the Chinese Foreign Ministry, which said it was a "sincere invitation" to the North Korean leadership to visit Beijing. The proposal was made in the context of the recent signing of the Beijing Olympic Games, Public Security Bureau spokesman Wang Heping told reporters in an announcement the state-owned media outlet. AP

Ticket graft

BEIJING—State leaders and officials were accused of corruption in the sale of tickets for the 2008 Olympic Games. The Anti-Corruption Commission said hundreds of leaders had also been paid to obtain tickets for the games, which opened in 2008. State leaders were accused of using their power to obtain tickets for the games to be received but obtained them for the public. AP

Indonesia ratifies Asean charter

JAKARTA—INDONESIA ON TUESDAY ratified the Southeast Asian Charter, a landmark document of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) member nations to increase dialogue and encourage a single free-trade area by 2015.

Indonesia was the last member of the 10-nation regional bloc to ratify the charter after the Philippines signed up earlier this month, clearing the way for its formal adoption at a summit in Bangkok in November for this year.

The charter of the Asean remains the group's common human rights and democracy soft-law rules for members and transmits Asean's legal reality.

"It's really no longer about this Asean has made much progress that the working relationship among member countries is effective," said Indonesian Minister of Foreign Affairs, Marzuki Darusman, the head of the committee that helped draft the constitution law.

Asean consists of Brunei, Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Malaysia, Myanmar, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam. AP

Banko Sentral seen to ease key policy rates

By Michael K. Romo

INVESTMENT BANK MERRILL LYNCH expects the Banko Sentral to ease its overnight repo rate, and even cut its overnight lending rate by 25 basis points, when its Monetary Board meets in November.

In its "Global Economics Update," Merrill Lynch said some central banks, including that of the Philippines, are poised to loosen their monetary policies by reducing borrowing rates as a means to prevent their economies from further slowing down.

Merrill Lynch says RP economy to grow by only 4.3%

"Global conditions have probably been eased, but the fundamental path ahead looks tough," the investment bank said. "Sales policy needs to turn more aggressive, to keep pace with the world's rich countries."

The monetary tightening stance adopted by the BSP the previous months was in response to the sharp rise in consumer prices. Since June, the BSP has implemented three hikes in its overnight borrowing and lending rates, until those hit 5 and 8 percent, respectively.

The Merrill Lynch said another round of tightening was not likely, given the need to pump-prime the BSP earlier explained that the hike in policy rates of the previous months were aimed to curb inflation, which had hit a 17-year high of 12.3 percent in August.

An increase in the BSP's borrowing rate encourages banks to put more of their funds with the BSP. This encourages growth of money supply and controls rise in aggregate demand, to tame inflation costs.

However, a hike in the BSP's policy rate has the adverse impact of curbing economic growth. This is because higher interest rates make bank loans more expensive, thus discouraging capital investments.

The BSP said that, after the policy rates were raised, inflation would remain in a single-digit level in the first quarter of next year. The BSP's forecast is shared by various analysts and economists.

Merrill Lynch expects the Philippines economy to grow by only 4.3 percent this year as a result of the global slowdown. This forecast is less than the government's projected growth of between 4.4 and 4.5 percent this year.

Gov't doubles 'palay' budget to P17B

By Amy B. Romo

THE GOVERNMENT has doubled the budget for the domestic policy program this year to P17 billion, in a bid to shore up the national rice stockpile by end 2006.

The government hopes to maintain a near supply stock enough to last for 30 days.

In the timeline of the 4th Philippine Business Confidence Index, Agriculture Secretary Arsenio C. Yap said that the additional budget, which was recently approved by the Cabinet, would form part of the National Food Security's core program investments.

Initially, the government had allocated P6.5 billion to cover the 2005 local procurement of 500,000 metric tons of palay.

By September, the SPA had announced that it would double its policy program—now valued at 13 million MT. The budget, however, is still pending with the Department of Finance.

Yap has done these months left in the year, big government confidence that the agency would meet its policy procurement target.

"So this time last year, the SPA only bought 6,000 MT of palay from farmers," Yap said. "Currently, the SPA has already bought 220,000 MT of palay from farmers. I think there's potential and I think this is possible, especially since President Macapagal-Arroyo has ordered an increase of the SPA's buying stations."

As of the first week of October, the SPA has been buying at an average of 123,000 50-kilo-gain bags a day. In September, policy procurement had reached 2 million bags.

Mazda's own pickup line to woo attractive market

By Vince M. Delaney
Executive Board Chair

KNOWN MORE IN THIS country for its sporty sedan, Maeda Philippines (d) a major move last week when it introduced a lifestyle pickup known in Australia, Thailand, Canada, Russia and New Zealand as the Maeda BT-50.

Manitowoc said the pickup segment in the Philippines had been growing faster than the industry as a whole in the last two years.

Cars on wheels have always been the lifeblood of the Brazilian, the American and the Japanese, frequent Mustang participants in Brazil's ride and drive activity on a daily Oct. 14. More than 1000 cars from Miami Beachville to the other International Racers.

Along the way, Eric C. Whelan, Mazda's Philippine assistant vice president for marketing, spelled out the rhyme and reason behind Mazda's (M) return into the pickup segment.

THE NEW Mando NT-Miles has two low-speed gearbox versions—a 2500 version and the 4000 transfer system that features a rack-and-pinion operation ideal for commercial use or for more advanced, off-road applications.

THI: This is the first time Mazda Philippines, under Ford, introduced a pickup, right? Why did it take this long? Was it due to the relationship with the previous distributor, Strathairn Motors Corp.?

ECM: Yes, this is the first new truck model under Ford Camper Philippines Inc. will be releasing a pickup in the market. It took a while for us to release a new line.

comes of the 1998 meeting that Honda Japan had in Seattle first, but not only that. It was also to host meetings our producer travels into the market (Honda also recently introduced the Civic, MDX 1 and the new Accord) and meet as well with our dealer network expansion plans, and right market conditions. Also, by attending it now, we are introducing the facilities of 2000 here.

which has also just been released to the other major markets like Thailand and Australia.

To Manila, Philippines introducing the 101.50-dm—among others—to the local market's a shift in preference for more fuel-efficient and multipurpose (commercial utility vehicles) over cars.

But how about the pickup company in the Philippines, in particular?

The pickup segment in the Philippines is very healthy. It has been growing faster than the industry. It is up about 70 percent in the last 2 years. That's nearly double the demand here just two years ago.

The GUN would come in an ORV (completely built up unit) from Thailand, right?

We live in Thailand, just like all other breeds. That is our only reason.

There have been good reasons of the E150, particularly in its first run, caption: Has Manila Philippines done its own best yet?

But haven't data that went actual test in the Philippines per state the world just started writing that well. However, some in Japan have shown that the EF-50 has one of the best fuel economy ratings versus competitors. For example, a consumption of 13.2 km/liter at 90 kph means speed at a test track for the 2.3L 4X2 1MT was achieved.

But the EF-50 will be directly competing with the Ford Mustang, Chevy's "Aero" (the Rammer's market here).

No, we don't expect the Munda III (G) to significantly affect the current sales performance of the Ford Ranger.

Yes, there may be some sales declines, but we expect that to be minimal. Insurance companies expect the Munich RE 50 to appeal to a different type of buyer, the focus and intention is to target other companies in the industry. Munich will appeal to those who are looking for a lifestyle policy that is both stylish and handsome and drives like a car. We will do this through product features, pricing and

Organize your beauty essentials

Beauty racks
are a convenient way to store the items that keep us groomed and looking pleasant.

IT IS COMMON PRACTICE to have a beauty rack by your bathroom counter—whether placed under the mirror, built on the wall or as an individual feminine accessory placed on the bathroom counter. Beauty racks are a convenient way to organize and access the items that keep us groomed and looking pleasant.

Some organizing tips:

Classify and organize your stash. This way you don't waste time looking for what you need. Designate appropriate areas in the shelf to ensure access to what you need—hair care in one area, vitamins and makeup in another area. Toothbrush and shaving products should be placed in a spot that's also easily reached.

Use clear, upright containers to hold toothbrushes, mouth and hair brushes, makeup brushes, Q-tips and cotton buds. This will save space in the shelf, aside from looking neat and hygienic and allowing you to find what you need at first glance. Small items like medicine tablets should also be stored in transparent containers.

Maximize space by putting small bottles in front of big and tall ones. Be sure all labels are visible.

Take your essentials. Pick out those indispensable in your daily routine and give them a place of importance in your beauty rack. Discard what you don't need or those that have expired.

Expect more:
insight and expertise that help you realize your vision of wealth.

We'll take you further.

Throughout the year, PNRC has to be prepared for outbreaks such as dengue, which require plasma transfusion and fresh frozen plasma, components of blood which are processed through a standard clinical refrigerated storage.

Though to have the equipment, it has to upgrade them to meet the global blood banking standards to produce quality blood products.

PAOLO Ferragamo

From blood, that of the blood service program of the Red Cross, has asked the help of Rudy Tuzman, MD, president, for a new refrigerated centrifuge.

The machine separates whole blood into different blood components (packed red blood cells, plasma and platelets) in a controlled temperature environment. The machine functions by rotating in a specific speed, thus, the different blood components separate due to their difference in density.

Through a new machine, these patients can benefit from a single blood donation. The machine more blood to aid more Filipinos, especially the poor.

THE BATON OF THE CONDUCTOR went down and the auctioneer's gavel up during the 15-minute presentation of "Luna's Child's Play"—the concert at Rockwell Time last Friday featuring the Philippine Youth Symphony Band's (PYSB) pop interpretations of traditional Filipino children's songs.

An auction of collectible children's and pet furniture—donated by some of the country's leading designers—went on the block at 15 percent below their regular prices.

Children's furniture included Fry Alvarado's whimsical children's bench inspired by the floral motifs of French artist Christian Banti, Alex Pantastico's baby version of the "Crown Chair," Blake Olvera-Cox's basket to carry, upholstered in animal print.

The pet items, Animal Warehouse designer Melissa Smith and architect pet bed, Alex Banti's fully upholstered dog bed complete with fluffy pillows, and Joey Yipagorin's versatile pillow bed-cum-blanket which was also for nesting pet toys.

Simon de los Reyes' pet chair featured rolled wires and a dramatic curved back, while Brian Santiago Olvera-Cox's dented dog bed could be rolled down for exercise.

This was the second year the Young Museum Development Organization (YMDO) had conducted an auction for young musicians to realize their potentials through creative marketing camps and a bid for the PYSB.

"The response from our designer friends has been overwhelming," said Olvera-Cox, executive director of the YMDO board of trustees. "We have pledges for the next five years!" Truly heartwarming.

Jose S. Arceles, board chair, thanked the designers for making the concert a "memorable event," adding: "All those with creative minds abound in proximity. These wonderful designers have taken the

COLLECTORS KNOW HIM to be a master of metal, but who knew that sculptor Daniel de la Cruz (who just had his solo show of graceful female figures called "Halo" at Ayala Museum) was a green thumb as well? It was Daniel who was responsible for the look, Asian-inspired landscaping of his family's recently renovated house in Mandaluyong, still a working sight for those who live here, and the perfect complement to the extraordinary architecture of this living or property.

The opening new look is courtesy of the sculptor's wife Hsiao, an interior designer and the one behind Ayala Museum's feature Christmas Christmas for the last six years. Though more involved in landscaping, Hsiao worked with architect Michelle Lapina on this project. Lapina admits her exposure to the house, an unusual look of the most advanced lot in the city has a big influence on her style.

There were no limitations for the three-level house which was originally shaped like a cube and all-around square. "I actually had no idea what the house would look like until we bought the main door," says Hsiao, who brought her doors from home accessories shops. "But after we got it, we started to build around it."

Start with walls, "then curtains" the description of larger-than-life windows, a wide open floor plan, and low key furnishings made perfect sense to a home where tranquility and natural elements are the main focus. That the couple's three kids finally have rooms of their own is definitely a big deal. First to decorate their own private space, the two boys and girl were used to sleep in the same bedroom (jumped at the chance of showing off their new colors...to more ways than one).

Blair boy (and La Salle's Eduardo, chose his school colors, green, white, black and gold (he used to sleep in the same bedroom) jumped at the chance of showing off their new colors...to more ways than one).

Blair and Hsiao stay in rooms that open to an Asian-themed courtyard in brilliant red. A sleek and spacious bathroom with massage tub and rainfall shower. "I said all my rules over," said Hsiao with a laugh. "to surprise me for my future kids, which means, among other things, a huge portrait of the lady of the house, a painting done in Vietnam."

It's all part of the plan, says Hsiao, who added why the house is called "Hsiao."

The name is also strategically placed. "Do you hear this?" says Hsiao of their main door's reading sign. "It's all in the name which is coming out of the house."

Complete as it appears, the house is under a week in progress. There's enough space on the second level for another bedroom, says Hsiao, and Daniel presented a single bedroom on the first floor.

"And I can always paint the white walls and the color," she says. "The purple, purple, or orange, if I want a black look, it could be anything."

We can't wait when that happens.

admirer of the young Filipino musician in Spain.

Friends from the nation will help create another Mabilis Villanueva, an 18-year-old French-born player and POPS alumni who went on to perform with the Asian Youth Orchestra in concert around Asia this summer. He played with the POPS in "LALO GUSTO Play."

Hosted by anchor Niky Mendoza, the concert also featured the debut of vocalist May Rana.

Children's songs such as the playful "MABILIS," the spirited "LALO-GUSTO Here," and the josty "Impagong-impag Pagiging" were rearranged in genres familiar to the young—pop, rock, jazz.

POPS released a four-track CD sampler, showcasing some of the highlights of the concert. The full 18-track CD would be awarded live in a performance at the Cultural Center of the Philippines in October next year.

Since the beginning, the POPS has taken talent as young as 7-year-old and nurtured them through an annual musical chair program. The intensive five-in camp holds classes in sight reading, musicianship, solo instrumental and chamber play.

POPS's goal is to inspire young musicians and open opportunities for their career to go in full bloom.

It seems how infants are born affects the development of their immune system.

"Breast milk contains good bacteria such as bifidobacteria which are especially vital to Caesarean-born infants as these bacteria help awaken and train the infant's immune system to be strong."

For many, the gut is just an organ for digestion. But did you know that the gut is the largest immune organ of the body? In fact, the gut holds 80% of the body's antibody-producing cells.

The development of the gut as an immune organ starts from the moment of birth. Recent research shows that its development is affected by how an infant is delivered into the world. And this influences the infant's health in later years.

Infants born through the vaginal route acquire healthy levels of friendly bacteria like bifidobacteria earlier than those born by the surgical mode known as Caesarean section. The earlier and larger presence of friendly bacteria in a newborn's gut helps develop a strong immune defense.

The "route" of the problem

An infant delivered vaginally comes in contact with its mother's bacteria in the birth canal. Which is why many vaginally-delivered infants take only 10 days to establish healthy levels of bifidobacteria in their gut. Unlike vaginal delivery, Caesarean delivery is less conducive to the growth of friendly bacteria in the gut because the infant misses out on the natural process of passing through the birth canal where contact with the mother's bacteria happens. Instead, the Caesarean-born baby is delivered surgically. Thus its exposure is limited to the sterile hospital environment. As a result, many Caesarean-born infants experience a delay in the development of healthy levels of bifidobacteria in the gut. For many Caesarean-born infants, it takes up to 6 months to have a dominant presence of bifidobacteria in their intestines. These good bacteria are needed to help awaken and strengthen the immune function of the infant's gut. And this slow appearance of good bacteria in the gut of a Caesarean-born infant makes the infant more prone to infections and allergies.

Benefiting from breastfeeding

Breast milk is the best source of nutrition for infants. Not only does it contain all the nutrients essential for optimal mental and physical development but it also has the same nutrients that support the multiplication of friendly bacteria in the gut. Current technology has also confirmed that breast milk contains friendly bacteria like bifidobacteria, which can be easily passed on to a newborn through breastfeeding. Which is why mothers with Caesarean-delivered infants are highly encouraged to breast feed their newborn in order to quickly establish the good bacteria the infant needs for a healthy gut, thus, a strong immune function.

The pros of probiotics

According to the World Health Organization, probiotics are "live microorganisms which when administered in adequate amounts confer a health benefit on the host." This means having probiotics or friendly bacteria in our digestive system is definitely a healthy option as they promote the dominance of friendly bacteria in our gut as well as help fight infection and allergy. Given this, Caesarean-born infants can truly benefit from the expert protection of probiotics.

How to deal with food allergies

FOOD ALLERGIES ARE AN OVERLOOKED side of the baby's immune system in a specific part of the food, usually a protein. Here's advice on how to deal with this common ailment, warning of The Medical City Children's Hospital, Paly City.

Food intolerance is sometimes confused with food allergy. Food intolerance refers to an abnormal response to a food or food additives and is not an allergic reaction. It does not involve the immune system for any food allergy diets. Late-onset intolerance, for instance, occurs only because an individual lacks the enzymes to break down milk sugar for proper digestion.

Causes

The body uses 90 percent of food as energy sources in children. Milk, eggs, peanuts, wheat, soy, tree nuts (such as pecans and walnuts).

In adults, four foods cause almost all food allergy reactions: peanuts, tree nuts, fish, shellfish (most common egg allergy, milk, wheat, soy, peanuts, tree nuts).

Children will frequently ingest an allergy to eggs, milk and soy. However, allergies to peanuts, tree nuts, fish and shellfish usually continue into adulthood. Both raw and cooked food can cause allergic reactions.

Symptoms

Signs and symptoms of adverse food reactions may include any or several of the following:

- Rash (hives), discomfort of mouth or throat
- Skin reactions such as hives, rashes, itching or flaking
- Rapid expansion or reduction, a faint nose or sneezing
- Itchy or watery eyes
- Irritated symptoms such as nausea, vomiting, colic, abdominal cramping or diarrhea
- Itching (tingling) swelling of the lips, palate, tongue or throat

Other allergic diseases can be exacerbated by food allergies, such as dermatitis or eczema (may suggest by food allergy). Severe allergic reactions to anaphylaxis, which can be fatal or life-threatening, may also be triggered, especially in infants.

Severe reactions

Consuming food not in allergic to one causes a life-threatening reaction called anaphylaxis. This can be fatal and needs urgent medical attention. Symptoms include:

- Swelling, wheezing, flushing, tingling in mouth or throat, body-wide (usually the first sign)
- Feeling of lightheadedness
- Shortness of breath, difficulty breathing
- Feeling of swelling or tightness in the throat
- Anxiety
- Stomach or chest cramps
- Sweating and dizziness
- Drop in blood pressure that results in loss of consciousness and shock

Anyone with severe allergic reactions (suggesting possible anaphylaxis) must get emergency treatment immediately.

Diagnosis and treatment

An allergy/immunology specialist is the best qualified professional to diagnose food allergies. Symptoms:

- Avoid the food. Once you have food allergies, no medicine can make them go away.
- Read food labels carefully. A particular food protein can have more than one name. Milk can be labeled milk or lactalbumin, and soy can be listed in many products such as soybean, soy protein, soy oil, soy lecithin, soy flour, soy meal, soy and so on. Talk to an allergist or immunologist about ingredients in such foods.

- Ask about ingredients when eating "fast food." The fast-food menu is allergic to from a child is NOT appropriate.
- Be prepared for emergency. Those who have experienced anaphylactic reactions to a food must always avoid that food and know how to use an emergency medication (epinephrine, antihistamine, and corticosteroids). These are not a band-aid for the allergic reaction.

Other things you can do

- Track children with food allergies not to accept food from restaurants or friends. Make sure teachers know of the food allergies.
- If you are susceptible to allergies, wear a medical alert ID at all times.
- Teach children to read food labels to understand what ingredients are in commercial food.
- Teach people around parents with food allergies to recognize symptoms of allergic reactions, particularly anaphylaxis.
- Doctors and their families must keep epinephrine and antihistamines readily available.

Anita Linda considers Cinemania Best Actress
trophy as a 'birthday gift'

By Reynald San Diego Jr.

ANITA LINDA COULDN'T MAKE IT TO THE Cinemania awards stars held Monday in Makiling because there was too "garden-ly day."

"My hair wasn't fixed and my hands were dirty" she recalled.

Still, she said she was "honored" to win Best Actress for her work in Adultera, a 2008 film which competed with six other films in the festival's Southeast Asian section.

Linda said Anita cried upon learning the good news.

"It's my first international recognition," she later told Agencia Intercontinental in a press interview. "It's a pleasant surprise and a great birthday gift."

Turning 64

The legendary actress, who won a Manila Film Award in 1991 (opposite of the Best Actor for Star), turned 64 on Oct. 23.

Also in the 64th section, Manila Mayor of Thailand's "The Love of Siam" won Best Actress (Philippines) among several other and Best Actor (Philippines) "Conditional" won Best Film.

In the festival's main international section, Israeli "The Band's Visit" won Best Film, 80-Indonesia "The Amazing Truth about"

"Queen Sappho" won Best Actress. Her film Best Actress went to another Filipino, Angel Riquelme, for Star "Makabuluhan". Riquelme's husband won Best Actor for Australian "Lucky Miles."
